STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The menace of naxalism is not only limited to remote areas of the naxal affected States but its presence is increasing in the urban areas also through the naxal frontal organizations. The spread of active frontal organizations of the naxal groups gives constant and effective support in terms of logistics and safe refuge to their armed cadres. The seized literature of naxals shows "safe houses" and "urban dens" of the Maoist network in the cities of the State of Maharashtra. The activities of naxal organizations or similar organizations through their united front are creating unrest among common masses to propagate their ideology of armed rebellion against the constitutional mandate and disrupts public order in the State.

2. The unlawful activities of such frontal organizations need to be controlled by effective legal means. The existing laws are ineffective and inadequate to tackle this menace of naxalism.

The Ministry of Home Affairs, Government of India has, in various meetings, issued directions, from time to time, for implementation mechanism for countering activities of such organizations in urban areas and choking of flow of funds to them. The Home Ministry has, in the guidelines for Security Related Expenditure to naxal affected States, advised for enactment of legislation by the State to tackle unlawful activities of naxal extremists organizations or similar organizations.

3. The States of Chattisgarh, Telangana, Andhra Pradesh and Odisha have enacted the Public Security Acts for more effective prevention of unlawful activities of such organizations and banned 48 frontal organizations. In the absence of similar law in the State of Maharashtra such organizations are active in the State. The Government, therefore, considers it expedient to enact a special law for more effective prevention of unlawful activities of such organizations on the lines of Public Security Acts enacted by other naxal affected States.

4. The Bill seeks to achieve the above objectives.

Mumbai,
Dated 9th July, 2024.

Deputy Chief Minister.
